Instead of calling out your decisions, make hand signals to show what you want to do. This keeps the dealer from misunderstanding you due to crowd noise. Also, signalling with hands lets the cameras see what you wanted to do (and have a record of it), so there's never any dispute about what your bet was. If you want a new card, scrape the cards to signal "hit". If you don't want a new card, tap the cards on the table to signal "stand". If you want to double, place a chip stack next to the old chip stack, but never on the chips. If you want to split, place chips next to the old chip stack, but outside the betting area.
