There seem to be two contributing factors to the industry's present slump. Firstly China is experiencing the slowest economic growth since 1990. Secondly, President Xi Jinping's anti-graft campaign has had a negative impact on the VIP high rollers. This anti-corruption stance has meant many high-stakes gamblers have chosen to avoid any scrutiny by authorities into their affairs during the holiday period. This sentiment was echoed by Grant Gouvertson, an analyst at Union Gaming Group. More so, he emailed Bloomberg to say: 'The biggest culprit for the weak month was the already-troubled VIP segment. While we believe there was a pickup in VIP headcount, gaming volumes just weren't there.' 777 games unblocked

There are a couple of problems with this bet. An obvious one is when you have the strongest hand and your opponent would have called an all-in bet too. Then betting only 70k just cost you 70k. It is not the end of the world though: you still have a 410k stack. A lot worse is when you both have weak hands and your opponent raises you as a bluff and you fold. Then you are left with 70k while an all-in push from you straight away would have won you the pot. Now you are sitting with 70k, less than 10 big blinds, instead of a healthy stack of 340k. I think that it is this situation that so many players are afraid of. And if you want to use the 70k bet you have to make the bet with bluffs sometimes.
