Brendon Rubie called Charbel Boustani's all and made his move. Brendon had a hand of jacks and aces while Charbel was holding a hand of tens. The board was good for Charbel with 8-5-3, but a jack on the river and an eight on the turn secured the win for Brendon. This resulted in Sam and Brendon going head-to-head, with Brendon raising with AU$55000 and Sam calling. Brendon then wagered 60000 on the flop, with a jack, eight and ace. Sam decided to call once again, resulting in the turn showing a seven, and Brendon betting again. Sam decided to go all in, and Brendon called. Sam had a hand of jack and eight for two pairs. However, Brendon had a two pair of aces and jacks. The nine on the river could not help Sam, as Brendon earned tons of chips. Besides being a world-class poker player, Benson has also achieved some significant accomplishments in the world of chess. Benson began playing the game at the age of 13, and took a liking to correspondence chess – the style of chess in which moves are mailed back and forth between opponents, allowing games to continue for months or years. In 2003, Benson won the Australian Correspondence Chess Championship. In the years to follow, he would earn the International Master and Senior International Master titles for correspondence chess, which signified his mastery of the game (Senior International Master is the second-highest title awarded by the International Correspondence Chess Federation, under only International Correspondence Grandmaster). Benson also has three daughters, and has been married twice.
