One of the best hands in this game is when you hold three cards between Ace and five. Straights don't count, so A-2-3 is probably the best starting hand overall. But really any player holding any three cards between Ace and five (unpaired) has a solid hand, worth a bet and a raise if they get the chance. Less valuable is a hand with three cards Ace to six, and most of the time you can play that hand just as aggressively as the Ace to five hand. This also means you should watch out for players with low cards who increase their wagers.
